I had to respond to a press release asking for the exact number of AEs issued in 2014. This was 26, but in previous years, it was a much higher number.

I wanted to make sure you knew the database had that error in it for CA. I was not sure you had been told. And you got the revised number for R. 8 AE's? More like 25-30 a year.

I will be sure to include that in the FOIA response cover letter. With GAO, it was less formal... was just giving examples of how the database is inaccurate, and not to perform any analyses on the data.

I revised the "Peter briefing document—accepted all of Dave's edits" and forwarded it to Ron & Holly. Ron is going to pull what he needs to brief Ken. If I get anything back will share with you.

So happy tomorrow is Friday! ☺

Thanks,

Lisa

Hi Lisa,

There was likely a disconnect on a part of the database between you and Joe/Bob that I am uncertain if you are aware of. Many times i informed them that the database, at least the last version I saw a year or so ago, was incorrect with respect to the AEs in California. The list contained the 88 formations that were originally applied for exemption with the CA primacy application, but only a subset were USDWs, and thus were actually exempted with primacy. (These are the non-hydrocarbon bearing waste disposal zones). Last I looked they were still in the database but I do not know if they are still in there. This is because Region 9 originally sent the incorrect information to HQ in reply to Ann's request. What was sent was the list in the primacy application, not the list of what was approved in our MOA with the state. What makes it more exciting as you know is that we have two versions of the MOA and there are 11 formations that were either exempted or not, but in either case all 88 that were applied for were not exempted since they did not meet the definition of a USDW.
